The attendance in the two Houses this morning was rather slim. Its being Monday would to some extent account for this, but the fact is both Senate and House have for some time past looked a great deal more meager than they should have done, especially when the importance of several measures before the General Assembly is taken into consideration. Citizens, in accepting the position of Senatoror Representative, take upon themselves a trust, with the full discharge of which nothing should be permitted to inter-

THE NEW CHARTER.

All the Changes Made by the Judiciary Con

AN INTERESTING DEBATE,

[Courier-Journal Special Phonographic Reports.]

FRANKFORT, Jan. 21

Mr. Phisters.—Mr. Speaker: As chairman of the Judiciary Committee, I am instructed to report this bill. That committee, is, has been engaged aimeat constantly for two weeks upon this set, and several members of the mights, from dark till midnight, in its consideration. It will be recollected that the citizens of Loui-ville elected delegates to a charter convention in that city, and that the members of that convention were engaged lineessantly in the consideration and perfecting of a new charter for about, as I am informed, nine months. The result of their deliberation was lise charter which has been prissed and hid upon the tables of the members of this convention of the city of the city of the consideration, and it was represented before the committee that it was adopted by a majority of twenty-fire hundred votes. Of course the action of the Charter Convention and the votes of the cit sens of Louisville do not make its law, because every at meorprorating or amending city charters necessarily emanates from the Legislature after they have transmitted the result of their deliberation to that body for its action.

As this is a matter involving the government of a city, now containing from one hundred and firty his contained of a city, now containing from one hundred and firty has been actived to the people who are to be governed by it. They are necessarily the people who are to be governed by them for their government of a city, now containing from one hundred and they have a considered in necessary for their good, as we'l as the first proposed by them for their government of a charter proposed by them for their government of a city, now containing from one hundred and they have been a city of a half million inhabitanta, we should pey great deference to the people who are to be governed by it. There shall be in said city a legis-lative, executive, and indical department, &c." The propriety of that change is obvi-ous without further expansation. On page 5 of the printed charter a part of section 5 reads as follows: "Each Board shall keep a correct journal of tornado there, has just returned and makes the following reteort:

Having just returned from Care City, I would state for the gratification of those generous persons who have so literally contributed to the sufference who have so that the sufference which has been forwarded to the committee will, as much as possible, be held by them for the purpose of rebuilding houses. I state the sufference which has been forwarded to the committee will, as much as possible, be held by them for the purpose of rebuilding houses. I state the sufference which has been forwarded to the committee which has been forwarded to the committee which has been forwarded that they were not the first day; for In a calamit to this kind there must be some confusion. But affect the committee has been or suntant of the sufference where the wind bad blown it.

From Bend W. Dudiey.

The following beautiful hymn was then sung Nearer, my God, to thee, Nearer to thee:

Nearer to thee;
Even the' it be a cross
That raiseth me!
Still ail my song shall be
Still ail my song shall be
Nearer to thee.
Nearer to thee.
Though like a wanderer,
Daylicht all gone—
Daylicht all gone—
Daylicht all gone—
yet in my dream I'd be
Nearer to thee.
Nearer to thee.

There let the way appear Steps up to heaven; All that thou sendes me In server given, Angels to becken me Neverer, my God, to thee, Nearer to thee.

Then with my waking the Bright with thy praise, Out of my sisten y grish "Bechel I'll rosse; So by my wees to be N. arer, my God, to thee, Nearer to thee.
